Johnson's Retirement Rumor Revived by Speech in Portland

WASHINGTON — General Hugh Johnson did some significant talking while on the Pacific coast that failed to be reported.

His words, just echoing back to official Washington, have aroused a new wave of speculation about Johnson's retirement.

The unrecorded observation was made in the course of a speech before the Pacific Advertising Clubs Convention in Portland, Ore. It was not contained in copies of the address given to the press.

This is what Johnson said:

"I am starving to death. I've got to get out and make some money for myself."

What is causing significance to be attached to this statement are the following facts:

1. This is the first time in months that Johnson, either privately or publicly, has admitted that he is considering retiring. Heretofore any suggestion that he was planning to get out invariably was met with bellicose denial.

2. The remark was made a few days after Johnson admitted he had recommended to the President that a board be established to rule the NRA.

3. This decision by Johnson followed four days of secret conferring between him and his former boss, Barney Baruch, who cancelled a vacation trip to be with his old friend.

For some months Barney has been privately urging Johnson to retire from the Blue Eagle roost. Baruch also is given credit for being the author of the NRA Board plan as a graceful subsitute for Johnson.

Unquesionably the silver-haired Wall Street operator has more influence with Johnson than any other single individual; and if Baruch advises the General to go, he probably will.

Box Car Home

Though the President is far from Washington, and though Federal funds are pouring out a largess of relief, piteous appeals continue to deluge the White House.

One of the latest comes from a woman in Nebraska asking Roosevelt to lend her fifty dollars.

"I can buy a box car from the railroad for fifty dollars and make it my home," she wrote. "But I don't have fifty dollars. If you will advance the money, I will pay it back five dollars a month."

Unfortunately both the Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Housing Administration advance money only to those who already have homes or who can satisfy the banks regarding the investment.

Collision

If railroad executives go through with their threat to seek a 10 per cent freight boost they are very likely to have a head-on collision with an ICC move for a general slash of passenger fares.

The rail moguls plaintively contend they must have the freight raise in order to meet greatly augmented operation costs.

They estimate these at $359,000,000 annually, made up as follows — $159,000,000 resulting from the agreement to restore the 10 per cent wage cut; $66,000,000 for the new railroad pensions act; and $137,000,000 because of higher commodity prices as a result of the NRA.

Even a 10 per cent freight increase, they say, will not meet the added ante. It will net only $300,000,000 additional revenue. ICC officials are saying nothing publicly about this reasoning. But privately they make sounds suspiciously like "baloney."

They do not deny that the carriers must meet considerably increased expenditures. But they disagree regarding the way to meet the burden.

What the railroads need, they think, is not to increase rates, but reduce them. This, it is held, will insure added income.

And they cite proof in the railroad industry to sustain this contention.

Leaders of Truck Strike Put in Stockade

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 1.— National guardsmen ruled striketorn Minneapolis with an iron hand today.

"Strike headquarters" was in their control, following a spectacular 4 a. m. raid. Long before noon they had arrested eighteen persons, including four leaders of the truck drivers' strike, now in its third week.

The union leaders were placed under military arrest and lodged in the stockade at the fair grounds. They are William Brown, president of the Truck Drivers' union; Vincent Dunne, his brother, Miles Dunne, and Henry Frank. They are charged with holding a mass meeting last night without military permit outdoor. Assemblages of more than 100 persons are prohibited by the military authorities.

GUNNERS IN ACTION

Four machine gunners and a full company of infantrymen, armed with rifles and bayonets, maintained guard at "strike headquarters."

The strikers have whipped themselves into an ugly frame of mind as a result of the action of the military authorities in issuing many permits allowing trucks to move through the streets with "necessities."

Approximately 7,000 trucks—about half the normal flow—have been rumbling along with fresh meats, groceries and other foodstuffs. Even trucks carrying beer are now operating.

This condition is nettling the union men who feel the national guard has slowly but steadily working toward the "breaking" the strike."

Strikers have suddenly turned on Gov. Floyd B. Olson who, they had been led to believe, was sympathetic toward their cause. They charge that while the governor has been directing "harsh words" at the employers he has been aiming blows at the union through the militia which has been gradually permitting more and more trucks to operate.

PICKETS BARRED

Picketing has been barred since the militia took over the situation last Thursday. At first the national guard allowed only a few trucks to operate. As the military authorities issued more and more permits for truck operations the strikers became indignant and their anger culminated in the announcement they would begin picketing on a large scale today.

The five crews are competing for the Litchfield trophy and the right to represent the United States in the James Gordon Bennett international races at Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 23.

MYERS FACES DEATH CHARGE

Oklahoma Student Surrenders To Lawyer; Involved In Girl's Death.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 1.—Sought for three weeks on a first degree murder charge in connection with the death of Marian Mills, University of Oklahoma beauty queen, Neal Myers, young El Reno pharmacy student, surrendered to his lawyer, W. P. Morrison, former state senator here today.

Tired and worn, his clothes dirty and torn, the youth appeared at the Morrison home in the middle of the night, climaxing a wild flight which took him through Oklahoma, Texas and several other states since Miss Mills' sudden death, July 10, supposedly from an overdose of a quack medical preparation to avert motherhood.

The youth was to be taken to Norman today where he will be turned over to Cleveland-co authorities and arraigned on the murder charge. Following an expected plea of not guilty he will be remanded to jail without bond pending trial.

Young Myers, wild-eyed and bewildered after his panic-stricken flight, denied he caused the death of the beautiful girl.

"I just couldn't stand the disgrace," he cried.

"He will plead not guilty," Morrison said. "We have not had much chance to talk things over with him, but he made it clear that he had no knowledge of what caused Miss Mills' death. They were in love—the boy was half crazed when she died."

675 TO WORK ON CORN PACK; PAY IS HIGHER

All Three Factories Swing Into Action With Force Next Monday

TO OBSERVE CODES

Report Fair Crop; U. S. Service is Used

Packing of the corn crop will be in full swing in Circleville's three canning factories next week with jobs expected to be provided for approximately 675 persons.

The Winorr Co. has already started on a small portion of its crop, but is not expected to be in full operation until next Monday, when the Sears and Nichols and Esmeralda factories also start.

With several heavy rains and plenty of sunshine adding to the growth of the corn during June and July, prediction is made for a good crop by most canners.

CODES EFFECTIVE

The NRA canners code provides for higher wages and more workers employed, so there will be a decided increase in the number of jobs available this year. The code stipulates that all canning factories must pay women 27 1-2 cents per hour and men, 32 1-2 cents. Women must also be paid double for overtime.

Violators of the code are subject to a fine of $500 for each day they operate without living up to the code's provisions.

The corn pack is expected to be underway in most of the factories from six to seven weeks, although there may be a letup of a week or so for change in crops.

The Esmeralda factory, which begins operations Monday, expects to employ approximately 75 persons, J. I. Smith, manager, announced today. The Sears and Nichols Co., which has been canning pork and beans during the summer, will have 300 on its payroll when full operation is resumed, it is expected.

The Winorr factory is also expected to have approximately 300 employed when operations are in full swing.

USE NATIONAL OFFICE

The factories are using the National Reemployment office here to secure many of their employes, and one, The Esmeralda Co., is using the service exclusively to get its laborers.

$11,034 FOR RELIEF HERE

Allotment Announced in Columbus; 972 Families Receiving Aid.

Pickaway-co, today, was alloted $11,034 for direct aid work relief during August, it was announced by the state relief commission in Columbus.

Nine hundred and seventy two county families will share in this relief, it was said. Of the total, $5,285 was alloted for direct relief, while $5,749 will be used to put men to work.

The relief commission announced that it would pour $8,425,924 in its August relief program for Ohio, an increase of $1,560,924 over the amount expended during July.

Surrounding counties and the amounts of their allotments included Fairfield, $21,404, and Fayette, $12,132.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 1.—The number of families drawing relief in Hardin-co jumped more than 300 during the past month due to the strike of 400 union onion weeders in the Scioto marshlands there, according to state relief department officials today.

NATIONAL OFFICE TRYING TO LOCATE JOBS

Work for Men and Women in Private Industry Objective of National Re-employment Service; Local Manager Asks Co-operation; Public Meeting to Be Held Evening of August 10.

A campaign to secure work for men and women in private industry was launched in earnest today by the staff of the National Reemployment service in District 17, comprising, Fairfield, Pickaway, Madison, Ross, and Fayette counties.

A. M. Howard, district manager, and James T. Shea, in charge of the local Reemployment office, announced today they had mapped out a program whereby all employers, including house-wives who occasionally need the service of domestic help, will be contacted by a series of sales letters, telephone, and personal solicitation.

MEETING AUG. 10

As a part of the plan, invitations are being extended to all organizations as well as to the general public to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House, August 10, at 7:30 p. m., at which a speaker from the state office of Reemployment Service will explain the origin and functions of the service.

Homer Fullen, chairman of the local Reemployment committee, has charge of the arrangements for the meeting.

Similar efforts are simultaneously going forward in the nineteen other districts of this state. Success of this effort is best gauged by the fact that approximately 1200 men and women were returned to permanent employment in private industries throughout the state last week by efforts of the Re-employment Service in Ohio.

LOUDEN CRIES, IS SENTENCED

Miami-Co Youth Gets Mansfield Term; Blames Associates For Crimes.

With tears in his eyes, Carroll Louden, 25, of Bradford, Miami-co, one of a quartet indicted in connection with a number of Ashville robberies, pleaded guilty to five indictments before Common Pleas Judge J. W. Adkins, Wednesday, and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Louden had previously pleaded not guilty in a wholesale arraignment of prisoners last week. Glenn Clark and Jess Friley, who are also held for their participation in the robberies, also entered pleas of not guilty.

Judge Adkins sentenced Louden to Mansfield on five charges, but the terms will run concurrently.

He was sentenced on the following indictments: robbery of Frank Morrison, Ashville grocer, 10-25 years; burglary and larceny of the Stanley Beckett electric shop, 1-15 years; burglary and larceny of the Henry Morris hardware store, 1-15 years; burglary and larceny of the Grove and Rhoads garage, 1-15 years, and stealing the automobile of Leon Taylor, Columbus, 1-20 years.

Crying for mercy before Judge Adkins, Louden, represented by Tom A. Renick, related to the court that he had "fallen in" with Clark and Friley because of his desperate circumstances. "I had never been arrested before," he told the judge. "Out of a job for a long time, I became disgusted seeing my wife and two children with nothing to eat. I met Clark and under his influence started on the bad way," he continued.

The prisoner declared that if he could have procured work from relief headquarters in Columbus, he never would have become involved in the robberies. He said he would testify, if called, when the cases of Clark and Friley come up for trial.

New Orleans Mayor Defies Huey Long

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 1.—Unawed by National guard machine guns trained on the City hall, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley today mustered the full strength of the city's police force and openly defied the forces of U. S. Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana political dictator.

Four hundred policemen, all armed, were mobilized on the mayor's orders following reports that the Long faction, backed by the state militia, were planning on taking over the police department.

Mayor Walmsley cancelled all police leaves and ordered the force available for 24 hour a day duty.

The bitter political fight between the forces of Senator Long and the city administration reached a critical state at midnight Monday when a machine gun detachment of the National guard took over the city voting registration office.

MRS. NOECKER TAKEN AT 82

Revered Madison-Twp Woman Succumbs After Paralytic Stroke.

Mrs. Sarah Caroline Noecker, aged 82, member of a prominent Madison-twp family, passed away at the home of her son, Clarence, Madison-twp, Wednesday at 3:30 a. m. She suffered a paralytic stroke a day ago after being in apparent good health.

She was the widow of the late John Peter Noecker and a first cousin of J. R. Noecker, local banker.

The funeral will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. at St. Paul Lutheran church with Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery with Mader & Ebert in charge.

Mrs. Noecker was born near St. Paul Nov. 30, 1851 a daughter of Lewis C. and Elizabeth Roof Baum, pioneers of that township. She married John P. Noecker in October, 1873. He died about 15 years ago.

Two sons, Howard E., and Clarence B., at whose home she died; one brother, Edward Baum of Ashville, and three grandchildren survive.

Mrs. Noecker was a devout member of St. Paul Lutheran church and was a charter member of its Ladies' aid.

Reed Baby Wins Month's Prizes

Child Is Seventh In E. Mound-St Family; Born To Rule, Astrologers Say.

To an eight pound girl, the seventh child of Mr. and Mrs. William A Reed, E. Mound-st, goes the distinction of being Circleville's first baby in August.

The child was born at 7:40 a. m. Wednesday. Dr. B. R. Bales was the attending physician.

The father is employed by the Sturm-Dillard Co. Both parents, the mother being Rosetta Pearce before her marriage, are 33 years old.

As the first baby of the month the child and its parents will receive the following gifts of Circleville merchants:

One quart of milk daily for two weeks free of charge from the Circle City dairy; a savings account of $1 by the Circleville Savings and Banking Co.; a case of Coca Cola from the Circleville Coca Cola Bottling Co.; a three months' subscription to The Herald free of charge; a dozen finest quality diapers from the G. C. Murphy Co.; cleaning of baby's entire outfit the first time it is cleaned by Barnhill Dry cleaning; a Chenille rug presented by Griffith & Martin; a box of cigars given by the Mecca restaurant; 400 pounds of ice to be used during August presented by the Circleville Ice Co., and a suitable floral tribute by the Brehmer greenhouses.

Astrologers predict August babies are born to rule. August-born people will wield power in any circle in which they find themselves. They are high-minded, impatient, bored with routine but suffering workers on a subject that interest them, according to the astrologers.

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug.1.—President Paul Von Hindenburg, Germany's national hero as well as titular ruler, grew weaker today, his doctors announced, and the entire German nation following the bulletins on the radio and reading them on public buildings felt that his death could not be far off.

The 8:30 a. m. bulletin (3:30 o'clock Eastern Daylight Saving Time) said, "Despite a quiet night the weakness is increasing. The president is fully conscious and without fever but his pulse is weaker."

Chancellor Hitler arrived today and spent two hours with his dying chief and then returned to Marienburg, preparatory to flying back to Berlin tonight.

Hitler sat at the bedside and talked with the president. Despite his weakness, Von Hindenburg was able to carry on his part of the conversation in the gruff manner that characterizes the aged soldier.

What they talked about probably will never be known.

Whether the others who accompanied Hitler to Neudeck were admitted to see the president was not disclosed.

A terrific heat wave held the countryside in its grip, adding to the discomfort of the venerable invalid.

Will Refuse Von Papen As "Envoy" of Hitler; Hindenburg Successor?

By International News Service

Developments in the rapidly shifting European situation today, as reported from various capitals, follow:

Vienna—The Austrian government informed International News Service that it would not receive Vice-Chancellor Von Papen of Germany as Chancellor Hitler's special "peace" envoy to Austria but would approve his appointment if he came as a regularly accredited minister representing not Hitler, but the Reich. Trial of Nazis involved in the conspiracy that resulted in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss was resumed.

Berlin—News from Vienna that Von Papen was unacceptable to the Austrian government as a special peace minister was a bitter blow to the German government which is awaiting official confirmation. Chancellor Hitler arrived at Neudeck where President Von Hindenburg is growing weaker today. All Germany discussed the question of who would succeed Hindenburg though the newspapers were forbidden to publish such comment.

$100,000 Kidnap Plot Shattered

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—A daring $100,000 kidnap plot, directed against James S. McLean, wealthy packer, was thwarted last night on the eve of the date set for its execution, provincial police announced today.

Three men who allegedly conspired to strong-arm McLean at his country estate, drug him, and then hold him for ransom in an underground tunnel prison at a suburban tourist camp, were arrested on charges of conspiring to kidnap.

McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., was to have been kidnapped today, according to police. The alleged plotters were surprised in quick raids last night, just a few hours, police said, before they were to have seized the packer.

Those charged with conspiring to kidnap were:

Frank Wood, former employee of McLean's company.

James Leslie and Harry Leslie, brothers of foreign descent and formerly of Winnipeg.

In addition Fred Hastings and Peter Leslie, a son of Harry Leslie, were arrested as material witnesses.

The men are charged with the first major kidnaping conspiracy in Canadian criminal history.

McLean, a director of numerous large Canadian corporations, is socially prominent and is known as a leading patron of the arts.

$100,000 Kidnap Plot Shattered

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—A daring $100,000 kidnap plot, directed against James S. McLean, wealthy packer, was thwarted last night on the eve of the date set for its execution, provincial police announced today.

Three men who allegedly conspired to strong-arm McLean at his country estate, drug him, and then hold him for ransom in an underground tunnel prison at a suburban tourist camp, were arrested on charges of conspiring to kidnap.

McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., was to have been kidnapped today, according to police. The alleged plotters were surprised in quick raids last night, just a few hours, police said, before they were to have seized the packer.

Those charged with conspiring to kidnap were:

Frank Wood, former employee of McLean's company.

James Leslie and Harry Leslie, brothers of foreign descent and formerly of Winnipeg.

In addition Fred Hastings and Peter Leslie, a son of Harry Leslie, were arrested as material witnesses.

The men are charged with the first major kidnaping conspiracy in Canadian criminal history.

McLean, a director of numerous large Canadian corporations, is socially prominent and is known as a leading patron of the arts.

675 TO WORK ON CORN PACK; PAY IS HIGHER

All Three Factories Swing Into Action With Force Next Monday

TO OBSERVE CODES

Report Fair Crop; U. S. Service is Used

Packing of the corn crop will be in full swing in Circleville's three canning factories next week with jobs expected to be provided for approximately 675 persons.

The Winorr Co. has already started on a small portion of its crop, but is not expected to be in full operation until next Monday, when the Sears and Nichols and Esmeralda factories also start.

With several heavy rains and plenty of sunshine adding to the growth of the corn during June and July, prediction is made for a good crop by most canners.

CODES EFFECTIVE

The NRA canners code provides for higher wages and more workers employed, so there will be a decided increase in the number of jobs available this year. The code stipulates that all canning factories must pay women 27 1-2 cents per hour and men, 32 1-2 cents. Women must also be paid double for overtime.

Violators of the code are subject to a fine of $500 for each day they operate without living up to the code's provisions.

The corn pack is expected to be underway in most of the factories from six to seven weeks, although there may be a letup of a week or so for change in crops.

The Esmeralda factory, which begins operations Monday, expects to employ approximately 75 persons, J. I. Smith, manager, announced today. The Sears and Nichols Co., which has been canning pork and beans during the summer, will have 300 on its payroll when full operation is resumed, it is expected.

The Winorr factory is also expected to have approximately 300 employed when operations are in full swing.

USE NATIONAL OFFICE

The factories are using the National Reemployment office here to secure many of their employes, and one, The Esmeralda Co., is using the service exclusively to get its laborers.

$11,034 FOR RELIEF HERE

Allotment Announced in Columbus; 972 Families Receiving Aid.

Pickaway-co, today, was alloted $11,034 for direct and work relief during August, it was announced by the state relief commission in Codumbus.

Nine hundred and seventy two county families will share in this relief, it was said. Of the total, $5,285 was alloted for direct relief, while $5,749 will be used to put men to work.

The relief commission announced that it would pour $8,425,924 in its August relief program for Ohio, an increase of $1,560,924 over the amount expended during July.

Surrounding counties and the amounts of their allotments included Fairfield, $21,404, and Fayette, $12,132.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 1.—The number of families drawing relief in Hardin-co jumped more than 300 during the past month due to the strike of 400 union onion weeders in the Scioto marshlands there, according to state relief department officials today.

NATIONAL OFFICE TRYING TO LOCATE JOBS

Work for Men and Women in Private Industry Objective of National Re-employment Service; Local Manager Asks Co-operation; Public Meeting to Be Held Evening of August 10.

A campaign to secure work for men and women in private industry was launched in earnest today by the staff of the National Reemployment service in District 17, comprising, Fairfield, Pickaway, Madison, Ross, and Fayette counties.

A. M. Howard, district manager, and James T. Shea, in charge of the local Reemployment office, announced today they had mapped out a program whereby all employers, including house-wives who occasionally need the service of domestic help, will be contacted by a series of sales letters, telephone, and personal solicitation.

MEETING AUG. 10

As a part of the plan, invitations are being extended to all organizations as well as to the general public to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House, August 10, at 7:30 p. m., at which a speaker from the state office of Reemployment Service will explain the origin and functions of the service.

Homer Fullen, chairman of the local Reemployment committee, has charge of the arrangements for the meeting.

Similar efforts are simultaneously going forward in the nineteen other districts of this state. Success of this effort is best gauged by the fact that approximately 1200 men and women were returned to permanent employment in private industries throughout the state last week by efforts of the Re-employment Service in Ohio.

LOUDEN CRIES, IS SENTENCED

Miami-Co Youth Gets Mansfield Term; Blames Associates For Crimes.

With tears in his eyes, Carroll Louden, 25, of Bradford, Miami-co, one of a quartet indicted in connection with a number of Ashville robberies, pleaded guilty to five indictments before Common Pleas Judge J. W. Adkins, Wednesday, and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Louden had previously pleaded not guilty in a wholesale arraignment of prisoners last week. Glenn Clark and Jess Friley, who are also held for their participation in the robberies, also entered pleas of not guilty.

Judge Adkins sentenced Louden to Mansfield on five charges, but the terms will run concurrently.

He was sentenced on the following indictments: robbery of Frank Morrison, Ashville grocer, 10-25 years; burglary and larceny of the Stanley Beckett electric shop, 1-15 years; burglary and larceny of the Henry Morris hardware store, 1-15 years; burglary and larcency of the Grove and Rhoads garage, 1-15 years, and stealing the automobile of Leon Taylor, Columbus, 1-20 years.

Crying for mercy before Judge Adkins, Louden, represented by Tom A. Renick, related to the court that he had "fallen in" with Clark and Friley because of his desperate circumstances. "I had never been arrested before," he told the judge. "Out of a job for a long time, I became disgusted seeing my wife and two children with nothing to eat. I met Clark and under his influence started on the bad way," he continued.

The prisoner declared that if he could have procured work from relief headquarters in Columbus, he never would have become involved in the robberies. He said he would testify, if called, when the cases of Clark and Friley come up for trial.

New Orleans Mayor Defies Huey Long

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 1.— Unawed by National guard machine guns trained on the City hall, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley today mustered the full strength of the city's police force and openly defied the forces of U. S. Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana political dictator.

Four hundred policemen, all armed, were mobilized on the mayor's orders following reports that the Long faction, backed by the state militia, were planning on taking over the police department.

Mayor Walmsley cancelled all police leaves and ordered the force available for 24 hour a day duty.

The bitter political fight between the forces of Senator Long and the city administration reached a critical state at midnight Monday when a machine gun detachment of the National guard took over the city voting registration office.

Mrs. Shields, Related In Pickaway-co, Dies

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Pavey Congrove of Adelphi for Mrs. Margaret Shields, 50, who died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Alice Lott in Kingston, following an illness of complications.

She is survived by her husband, George Shields, of Columbus; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hettinger, of Adelphi; six brothers, Enor Downs, of Laurelville; Homer, Beecher, Fred and Willis Hettinger of Adelphi, and Sebert of Circleville; three sisters, Mrs. Pavey Congrove, of Adelphi, Mrs. Ella Congrove of Hallsville, and Mrs. Alice Lott in Kingston.

Rev. Stump and Rev. Dunkle will officiate at funeral services and interment will follow in Green Summit cemetery.

BOY TAKING FIRST BICYCLE RIDE HURT

Frederick Garrett, aged 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garrett, of Pickaway-twp, suffered an injured leg and bruises when the bicycle he was riding on the Pickaway-Washington-twp line road, was struck by an auto driven by S. B. Chambers, this city, Tuesday evening.

Young Garrett was driving out of the road leading into the Arthur Heffner residence when struck. He had just purchased the bicycle about 4 p. m. Tuesday and was taking his first ride. His mother saw the accident from her home.

MRS. NOECKER TAKEN AT 82

Revered Madison-Twp Woman Succumbs After Paralytic Stroke.

Mrs. Sarah Caroline Noecker, aged 82, member of a prominent Madison-twp family, passed away at the home of her son, Clarence, Madison-twp, Wednesday at 3:30 a. m. She suffered a paralytic stroke a day ago after being in apparent good health.

She was the widow of the late John Peter Noecker and a first cousin of J. R. Noecker, local banker.

The funeral will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. at St. Paul Lutheran church with Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery with Mader & Ebert in charge.

Mrs. Noecker was born near St. Paul Nov. 30, 1851 a daughter of Lewis C. and Elizabeth Roof Baum, pioneers of that township. She married John P. Noecker in October, 1873. He died about 15 years ago.

Two sons, Howard E., and Clarence B., at whose home she died; one brother, Edward Baum of Ashville, and three grandchildren survive.

Mrs. Noecker was a devout member of St. Paul Lutheran church and was a charter member of its Ladies' aid.

Reed Baby Wins Month's Prizes

Child Is Seventh In E. Mound-St Family; Born To Rule, Astrologers Say.

To an eight pound girl, the seventh child of Mr. and Mrs. William A Reed, E. Mound-st, goes the distinction of being Circleville's first baby in August.

The child was born at 7:40 a. m. Wednesday. Dr. B. R. Bales was the attending physician.

The father is employed by the Sturm-Dillard Co. Both parents, the mother being Rosetta Pearce before her marriage, are 33 years old.

As the first baby of the month the child and its parents will receive the following gifts of Circleville merchants:

One quart of milk daily for two weeks free of charge from the Circle City dairy; a savings account of $1 by the Circleville Savings and Banking Co.; a case of Coca Cola from the Circleville Coca Cola Bottling Co.; a three months' subscription to The Herald free of charge; a dozen finest quality diapers from the G. C. Murphy Co.; cleaning of baby's entire outfit the first time it is cleaned by Earnhill Dry cleaning; a Chenille rug presented by Griffith & Martin; a box of cigars given by the Mecca restaurant; 400 pounds of ice to be used during August presented by the Circleville Ice Co., and a suitable floral tribute by the Brehmer greenhouses.

Astrologers predict August babies are born to rule. August-born people will wield power in any circle in which they find themselves. They are high-minded, impatient, bored with routine but untiring workers on a subject that interest them, according to the astrologers.

BANKERS INDICTED

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—The federal grand jury, which for the past month has been investigating affairs of the First National bank—Detroit and the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., returned 28 indictments today, naming prominent bankers and business men through the district. Collapse of the two institutions in February, 1933, precipitated the national banking crisis.

HINDENBURG IS WEAKER; NATION SAD

Pulse Failing, Bulletins Say; Hitler Visits National Hero

NEAR BATTLE SCENE

Chancellor to Follow Last Wishes of Man.

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug.1.— President Paul Von Hindenburg, Germany's national hero as well as titular ruler, grew weaker today, his doctors announced, and the entire German nation following the bulletins on the radio and reading them on public buildings felt that his death could not be far off.

The 8:30 a. m. bulletin (3:30 o'clock Eastern Daylight Saving Time) said, "Despite a quiet night the weakness is increasing. The president is fully conscious and without fever but his pulse is weaker."

Chancellor Hitler arrived today and spent two hours with his dying chief and then returned to Marienburg, preparatory to flying back to Berlin tonight.

Hitler sat at the bedside and talked with the president. Despite his weakness, Von Hindenburg was able to carry on his part of the conversation in the gruff manner that characterizes the aged soldier.

What they talked about probably will never be known.

Whether the others who accompanied Hitler to Neudeck were admitted to see the president was not disclosed.

A terrific heat wave held the countryside in its grip, adding to the discomfort of the venerable invalid.

AUSTRIAN ACT STIRS EUROPE

Will Refuse Von Papen As "Envoy" of Hitler; Hindenburg Successor?

By International News Service

Developments in the rapidly shifting European situation today, as reported from various capitals, follow:

Vienna—The Austrian government informed International News Service that it would not receive Vice-Chancellor Von Papen of Germany as Chancellor Hitler's special "peace" envoy to Austria but would approve his appointment if he came as a regularly accredited minister representing not Hitler, but the Reich. Trial of Nazis involved in the conspiracy that resulted in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss was resumed.

Berlin—News from Vienna that Von Papen was unacceptable to the Austrian government as a special peace minister was a bitter blow to the German government which is awaiting official confirmation. Chancellor Hitler arrived at Neudeck where President Von Hindenburg is growing weaker today. All Germany discussed the question of who would succeed Hindenburg though the newspapers were forbidden to publish such comment.

Belgrade — The Jugo-Slavian press, apparently with governmental approval, continued to voice suspicious of Italian intentions in Austrian and to warn Mussolini against independent military action.

PLAN GROVE MEET

Evangelist Mary Lou Henderson, of Frankfort, and Prof. C. C. Turner, of Xenia, will be principal speakers at the Bethel A. M. E. church grove meet to be held at the Hurst grove, near Clarksburg, Aug. 4 and 5.

A chorus of singers will furnish music and a small gate fee will be charged.

Dairy Nine Climbs From Cellar With 17 to 5 Win

The Circle City dairy drove out five hits, took advantage of a number of wild pitches and passed balls in addition to six bases on balls to defeat the McClarren Meats, 17 to 5, Tuesday evening winning its first game of the second half.

Floyd Leasure was on the mound for the winners and although hit safely 11 times he managed to guard his long lead. Leonard Buskirk was touched freely by the milk men but contributed considerably to his own downfall by wild pitching several men across the plate.

THREE SMACK THREE

Bob Maloney and Jack Eldridge led the dairy batters each hitting safely three times while Buskirk had three hits for his team. Eddie Miller entered the record book by walking his first four times to the plate. He crossed the plate after three of the Annie Oakleys.

The dairy scored six runs in the second frame and four in the fourth to clinch the deal.

Umpires were Bliss and Hamner behind the plate and Lynch on bases.

Tonight the Purina Chows meet the Given Oils in what should be a good game with the Container Corporation, vastly improved, meeting the Circleville Oils Thursday evening in an important fray.

MAY CALL BRENZEL

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—Bill Brenzel, catcher with the Kansas City team of the American association and formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates, may join the Cleveland Indians this week as a replacement for Glenn Myatt, veteran Tribe receiver who will be out for the rest of the season.

Brenzel, although only batting .295 in the Association, is said to be a brilliant catcher, according to Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Blues and former manager of the Indians.

The loss of Myatt, who fractured his ankle and dislocated his kneecap in the second game of the doubleheader here with Detroit yesterday leaves the Cleveland team with only one catcher, Frankie Pytlak.

BIRDS CUT GAP

COLUMBUS, Aug. 1.—The Columbus Red Birds today were closing the percentage gap between them and other league leaders after jauntily walking off with a double-header yesterday.

The Birds, playing on their home lot, took the first game from St. Paul 10 to 2 with five circuit blows included in the hits and then went on to stage a tenth inning rally in the nightcap to win, 4 to 3.

Meanwhile, the Minneapolis Millers, league leaders, trounced Toledo, 14 to 6, and Louisville turned back Kansas City 3 to 0. In the other American association game Indianapolis took Milwaukee, 5 to 4.

All teams were to face the same opponents as yesterday on today's AA card.

City Bans Peddlers

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Cheyenne is the second Wyoming city to ban house-to-house peddling or soliciting. A recent ordinance, modeled after the Green River, Wyo., regulation, which has been upheld by the courts, reclares all persons enter homes or office buildings to sell goods or solicit orders to be nuisances, and makes them liable to arrest and fine.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

HEARING TOM MANNING, Cleveland sportcaster, Tuesday evening in his rapid-fire resume of the Cleveland-Detroit double bill, a splendid tribute to Billy Knickerbocker, former American association star, was paid. Manning said that Umpire George Moriarity, working the game, said Knickerbocker's play at shortstop was the best single game performance he had ever seen—Knick, who is going great guns, pulled four seemingly impossible plays to help the Indians win the first game, 9-7. Tommy Bridges tamed them 4-2 in the second fray * * *

More tough luck for Uncer Chet Hauser—His right arm is broken in addition to his right kneecap—He is undoubtedly out for the year and Minneapolis is using Russ Young, catcher, at first base, while angling for a replacement * * * Harley Boss, who Hal Trosky beat out of a job at Cleveland, may be available at least since the Millers lost Bob Holland to the Indians in the draft—May be a little reciprocity * * *

THE RED BIRDS DID SOMEthing Tuesday that they should have done last Saturday and Sunday; that is, win a double header —The Columbus team handed the second game Saturday and Sunday to the Indianapolis Indians after seemingly having the contests in the bag * * * The St. Paul pitcher walked Lou Riggs to get at Terry Moore in the second frame and the fleet gardener drove over the winning run—Ward Cross was the winning pitcher with Clarence Heise getting credit for the first one * * *

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. world through the turn for the worse taken in his weakened condition by Germany's grand old man. From all corners of Europe journalists are converging here to report the progress of the octogenarian's greatest battle—a battle for life without the assistance of his beloved strategy, a battle where skilled doctors count more than heavy artillery as they attempt to keep open the lines of communications in the president's system.

While the doctors carry on the president is in a partial coma near the scene of his greatest victory—Tannenberg—20 years ago this month. The battlefield is only about 50 miles distant.

It was reported unofficially that he is suffering from progressive toxemia because the doctors have had to give up the catheterizing operations which have been necessary all through his long illness and partial convalescence because of a prostate gland condition.

If that is true there is no hope for the aged warrior whose 87th birthday would be celebrated in Germany on October 5 if he should live until that time. He would probably fall into euthanasia again and die without regaining consciousness.

NATION IN PRAYER

In the meantime Germany began its business day with silent prayer for the life of its great man hoping against hope that this "Rock of Gibraltar" against enemies of the Reich will survive to lend his mighty soothing influence to the most critical situation faced by Germany since the World War.

But in spite of pious hopes there is increased apprehension that he may fade away today.

This belief was strengthened by the first morning bulletin signed by Professor Dr. Sauerbruch, Germany's greatest pathologist, who has had the responsibility of the president's life all through this extended illness. The bulletin said that he was weaker. It offered no comfort to anxious Germany.

Much speculation was rife as to whether Hindenburg's last will requests his burial be at Neudeck forbidding a state funeral. In this case Hitler who is devoted to the aged field marshal, will observe the president's will to the letter. It is understood however that the government will arrange a huge nationwide mourning with extended ceremonies in all cities.

Hitler will probably convoke the Reichstag where he will make the last tribute to the old warrior who once defeated him in German's most exciting presidential election.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" Annoying the Winner

Dairy Nine Climbs From Cellar With 17 to 5 Win

The Circle City dairy drove out 15 hits, took advantage of a number of wild pitches and passed balls in addition to six bases on balls to defeat the McClarren Meats, 17 to 5, Tuesday evening winning its first game of the second half.

Lloyd Leasure was on the mound for the winners and although hit safely 11 times he managed to guard his long lead. Leonard Buskirk was touched freely by the milk men but contributed considerably to his own downfall by wild pitching several men across the plate.

THREE SMACK THREE

Bob Maloney and Jack Eldridge led the dairy batters each hitting safely three times while Buskirk had three hits for his team. Eddie Imler entered the record book by walking his first four times to the plate. He crossed the plate after three of the Annie Oakleys.

The dairy scored six runs in the second frame and four in the fourth to clinch the deal.

Umpires were Bliss and Hammel behind the plate and Lynch on bases.

Tonight the Purina Chows meet the Given Oils in what should be a good game with the Container Corporation, vastly improved, meeting the Circleville Oils Thursday evening in an important fray

U. S.-CHINA TRADE

SHANGHAI — United States participation in China's foreign trade registered a notable increase during the first four months of 1934 as compared with the year. Official Chinese customs statistics show that imports from the United States during the January-April period represented 29.16 per cent of total import trade as compared with 20.65 per cent in the corresponding period of 1933.

MAY CALL BRENZEL

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—Bill Brenzel, catcher with the Kansas City team of the American association and formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates, may join the Cleveland Indians this week as a replacement for Glenn Myatt, veteran Tribe receiver who will be out for the rest of the season.

Brenzel, although only batting .295 in the Association, is said to be a brilliant catcher, according to Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Blues and former manager of the Indians.

The loss of Myatt, who fractured his ankle and dislocated his kneecap in the second game of the doubleheader here with Detroit yesterday leaves the Cleveland team with only one catcher, Frankie Pytlak.

BIRDS CUT GAP

COLUMBUS, Aug. 1.—The Columbus Red Birds today were closing the percentage gap between them and other league leaders after jauntily walking off with a double-header yesterday.

The Birds, playing on their home lot, took the first game from St. Paul 10 to 2 with five circuit blows included in the hits and then went on to stage a tenth inning rally in the nightcap to win, 4 to 3.

Meanwhile, the Minneapolis Millers, league leaders, trounced Toledo, 14 to 6, and Louisville turned back Kansas City 3 to 0. In the other American association game Indianapolis took Milwaukee, 5 to 4.

All teams were to face the same opponents as yesterday on today's AA card.

City Bans Peddlers

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Cheyenne is the second Wyoming city to ban house-to-house peddling or soliciting. A recent ordinance, modeled after the Green River, Wyo., regulation, which has been upheld by the courts, reclares all persons enter homes or office buildings to sell goods or solicit orders to be nuisances, and makes them liable to arrest and fine.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

HEARING TOM MANNING, Cleveland sportcaster, Tuesday evening in his rapid-fire resume of the Cleveland-Detroit double bill, a splendid tribute to Billy Knickerbocker, former American association star, was paid—Manning said that Umpire George Moriarity, working the game, said Knickerbocker's play at shortstop was the best single game performance he had ever seen—Knick, who is going great guns, pulled four seemingly impossible plays to help the Indians win the first game, 9-7—Tommy Bridges tamed them 4-2 in the second fray * * *

More tough luck for Uncer Choe Hauser—His right arm is broken in addition to his right kneecap—He is undoubtedly out for the year and Minneapolis is using Russ Young, catcher, at first base, while angling for a replacement * * * Harley Boss, who Hal Trosky beat out of a job at Cleveland, may be available at least since the Millers lost Bob Holland to the Indians in the draft—May be a little reciprocity * * *

* * *

THE RED BIRDS DID SOMEthing Tuesday that they should have done last Saturday and Sunday; that is, win a double header—The Columbus team handed the second game Saturday and Sunday to the Indianapolis Indians after seemingly having the contests in the bag * * * The St. Paul pitcher walked Lou Riggs to get at Terry Moore, in the second frame and the fleet gardener drove over the winning run—Ward Cross was the winning pitcher with Clarence Heise getting credit for the first one * * *

Von Papen Envoy

Franz von Papen

Here is Germany's Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, whom Hitler has sent to revolution-ridden Austria as a "peace gesture" to the world, replacing Kurt Rieth as Reich envoy. Rieth was recalled after he arranged "without orders" the "safe conduct" to the German border for Nazi assassins of Chancellor Dollfuss.

In Fatal Triangle

Judson C. Doke, above, city official of San Leandro, Cal., is being held by police at Woodland, Cal., in connection with the fatal shooting of Lamar Hollingshead, 23-year-old Berkeley university student and poet, over the affections of Doke's pretty wife, Mrs. Helen Louise Doke, also above. Alleged love letters, intercepted by Doke, have been turned over to police.

FORMER PUBLISHER DIES OF INJURIES

A. E. Huls, Logan, Succumbs In Hospital While Son Is Hunted Through West.

Alpheus E. Huls, 68, former publisher of the Logan Republican and a personal friend of J. W. Johnson, N. Court-st, died in Grant hospital from injuries he received a week ago in an automobile wreck near Athens.

Mrs. Huls, who was injured at the same time, is reported in serious condition. She has a fractured skull and a broken shoulder.

Frantic efforts are being made to find their son, Fred, who with his wife and daughter, is touring the west. He does not know of his parents' tragedy. He is the present publisher of the newspaper.

Mr. Huls succumbed of a blood clot in the heart artery.

He served as inspector of the Division of Workshops and Factories under the late Governor Frank B. Willis and was a former postmaster and mayor of Logan for two terms.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.

Germany "Shocked"

GERMANY is reported to be "shocked" by the American note demanding that Americans be not discriminated against in the payment of interest on Dawes and Young loan bonds, and other obligations.

Instead of the frank treatment of the matter by the state department, Berlin had expected Washington to take a more flexible attitude and one that would permit of negotiations being undertaken. It even was hoped, according to dispatches from Berlin, that Washington would extend an invitation for a commission to be sent to the United States to discuss the matter, and that this discussion might involve an "adjustment" of the German-American trade balance in conformity with the German idea of making German exports to the United States balance German imports from the United States.

But the United States took a more blunt course. It wants its citizens to be treated the same as those of other nations holding German obligations. And it told Berlin so in plain but diplomatic language. If this was a shock, Germany will have to stand it the best it can.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"
by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XXXIX

The Japanese was politely blank. "Yes, sir," he assented, yet with a hint of obtuse obstinacy continued to hold the door open. "What name, plis? I go see."

"Say Mr. Bellamy is calling," Lanyard said.

If his choice of that nom-de-guerre had been unpremeditated, purely a matter of the moment's whim, it was at once evident that he had hit on a name of power.

"Oah, yes!" Intelligence waked instantaneously in the black eyes; and the Jap, as if his every misgiving had been set at rest, released the door, which closed of its own accord. "'Scuse, plis."

"Wait," Lanyard enjoined in the indolent tone of one who expects his lightest wish to be humored. "Here—take these, will you."

Without more ado he dumped hat, coat and gloves upon the servant's hands; and again effrontery prevailed for him. In sudden sleek docility the Jap turned to stow his armful away in a closet—a work of seconds only, yet many enough to cover a stretch of quick thinking.

It seemed evident beyond question that Lanyard's extempore stab at an alias for the hour had been a happy one. The Jap's prompt and supple reaction to the name Bellamy proved nothing if not the existence of a liaison between the hotel of the racketeers and this proud Park Avenue apartment; and if it proved that much, it proved more, that he would but waste time with the Boyce if he were to attempt now to accomplish anything either by diplomatic methods or by appealing to her sportsmanship; and still more, that the Jap was on terms of sympathetic acquaintance with the snob relations of his employer, therefore a potential menace as long as at large in the place while Lanyard was occupied with its mistress.

"And why not?" Lanyard mused, eying the Jap's back as he stood a-tiptoe to engage the loop inside the collar of the top-coat with a hook. "If the son makes free to copy his father's methods, why should not the father profit by the technique of his son?"

Deliberately, then, he planted a hand between the shoulders of the servant, toppled him in, to thresh among the hanging garments, and shut the door and turned the key in its lock.

Less deliberately he left the foyer, prepared for anything, prepared for, at best, a stiff scene with the Boyce. . . . But in the drawing-room there was no one.

He held briefly an alert halt, taking in the ample evidences that it had been till quite lately tenanted.

A handsome room, if a thought florid in its general scheme, it was lighted exclusively by table-lamps. An easy-chair closely shouldered one of these, in its arm a wisp of lace handkerchief lightly crumpled, on the floor beside it an evening newspaper a-sprawl; from an ash-tray on the table a thin fume of cigarette-smoke lifted, swaying in a light draft like the wraith of a wan small snake. In a corner back of the chair a miniature radio-set stood crooning to itself softly.

If their erstwhile audience was invisible, the assumption was reasonable that she had, as women will, hearing a new voice at the door fled to primp and repair her complexion. But Lanyard could neither hear any sound nor detect any symptom of life in the adjoining room of old-rose walls that an open door revealed; and when impudent reconnaissance from the threshold demonstrated that this the bedchamber, was also empty, he went boldly in and through, via the foyer, to the dining-room, pantry, kitchen and servant's room, then returned the way he had come, stopping only to look into the bathroom, and search every closet, without finding a sign of the Boyce.

Back in the bedchamber once more, he pulled up at a loss.

Nothing was more certain than that he was alone in the apartment with the embittered Jap, who was still venting his indignation by fits and starts on the panels of his prison-door.

If one guess was as good as another, surely the likeliest was that the Royce had taken fright, when she heard a strange man's voice at the door, and had made her escape.

Proof there was a-plenty beneath his very hand that she had left in haste: there on the glass top of her sybaritic silk-clad dressing-table a coruscant raffle lay, all the priceless treasure of her everyday jewelry, loot that would have paid the old Lone Wolf for any amount of planning and painstaking felony abandoned, apparently, without an instant's hesitation; for with the lot was something that, one would think, the lady would hardly have forgotten if she had had her wits about her and thought herself in any peril—a sweet trinket in gold-plate and mother-of-pearl, as vicious as dainty, an automatic pistol small enough to nestle unsuspected in the bottom of a lady's hand-bag, and deadly enough to drop a charging bull in his tracks.

Deliberately, then, he planted a hand between the shoulders of the servant, toppled him into the closet and turned the key in its lock.

Gingerly Lanyard examined the weapon. It carried a full clip, and had one cartridge already chambered. No telling how soon it might prove useful. Never before, it was true, had he gone under arms on his unlawful occasions. But tonight he was pitting himself against a new school of desperadoes, savage and treacherous as wild beasts. Even their women—as this bijou testified—were the sort to stop at nothing.

On second thought, however, Lanyard contented himself with extracting its fangs and leaving the pistol where he had found it. It went too much against the grain to break a life long rule of conduct, in this instance especially, when he looked to find himself in actual conflict, if in any, only with a woman.

But where had she fled in such panic? And why? Had she mistaken the voice at the door for that, perhaps, of some enemy in this strange American mob-world, some one at whose hands she had worse than arrest to apprehend?

The question went on gnawing, as irksome as a growling tooth: Where had she gone—to call for help? But she could so readily have done that by telephone!

To some other apartment, then? Some friend's, in the building? If so, whose?

There were, on the stand by the bed, two French-type telephones. One had on its base a dial device for calling outside numbers. The other was without a dial and carried a card with the legend "Ex. 31-B." To this last Lanyard applied himself. A feminine voice brightly responded and asked:

"Order, please?"

"Tell me something. Mr. Frederick Isquith has an apartment in this building, hasn't he?"

"He certainly has—all the thirty-second floor, right over your head. Wait a minute! I'll connect you."

"Never mind. I only wanted to be sure—thank you."

Lanyard hung up. One question, at all events, had been answered.

But if the Boyce had gone to call on Isquith for assistance, what chance had Lanyard of escaping from this trap into which he had walked uninvited? A trap, moreover, from which he had no mind to try to escape unless and until he found out what he had braved it to find.

He tried the other telephone, dialing the number of Crane's hideaway, but got no response other than a broken, muted trilling, the signal for a call that is not completed.

Then he visited the outer doors of the apartment again and thoughtfully set their chain-bolts: he wasn't of any mind to be taken by surprise if, as he suspected, this delay meant that Isquith and the Boyce were waiting for reinforcements from the mob-world to arrive.

The outraged Jap was still giving muffled yelps from time to time and pummeling the door of the foyer-closet; but Lanyard, pitiless, merely stopped at the radio set in the drawing-room and adjusted the volume control till the music was loud enough to override the racket. It was while he was thus engaged that he grew sensible again of the draft through the room, saw how the curtains were bellying in at long glass doors that opened on the terrace, and for the first time bethought him that the woman might possibly have taken to that refuge.

If so, she had, in all probability, been watching his every movement.

Who remembers the old uncomplicated times, when a movie decency drive consisted of telling Fatty Arbuckle he couldn't come back?

KNOW YOUR CANDIDATES

FOUR Democrats and one Republican seek the job of representing Pickaway-co in the Ohio General Assembly for the next two years. Nathan C. Bohnert, Monroe-twp, who has served four years, declined to run for a third term because of ill health.

It will be necessary to select a well qualified candidate to represent the county in the legislature for the next two years as many perplexing problems, including the school and taxation questions, will have to be solved.

Here are thumb-nail sketches of candidates in the field:

DEMOCRATIC

B. M. CRITES—Aged 64, born in Amanda-twp, Fairfield-co, October 16, 1869, son of Levi S. and Mary Crites. Came here at a comparatively early age and started in the farming business. Later associated with his father in the canning factory now owned by the Sears and Nichols Co., S. Washington-st. Built a number of elevators which he operated until several years ago, disposing them to the Ralston-Purina Co. Still operates several, however, including one on Harrison-st. Mr. Crites served in the city council here 14 year and was also a member of the Ohio constitutional convention in 1912. Well known member of the Ohio grange. Married and has two grown sons.

A. H. CROWNOVER—Native of Monroe-twp, where he has lived practically his entire life as a farmer. Attended Ohio Northern and Ohio Wesleyan universities. At one time considered becoming a lawyer. Returned to Monroe-twp after attending college and married. "I've been there ever since," he says.

CLARK K. HUNSICKER— Age 54, 146 W. Union-st, native of Deercreek-twp, son of Dr. J. W. and Maria W. Hunsicker. Attended school in Circleville and Pennington, N. J., graduating from latter high school. Operated general store from 1892 to 1908. Has served as member of Pickaway-co central committee for 18 years and is chairman at present time. Served two terms as member of the county board of education from 1920-1928. A grain dealer at Williamsport the past 23 years, he has also managed a number of county farms. Served two terms as treasurer of Deercreek-twp from 1902-06, and is now a director of the Farmers' National bank at Williamsport. Married, and has two children.

N. EUGENE REICHELDERFER—Age 52, N. Court-st, native of Tarlton, born January 21, 1882, a son of Rufus and Susan Reichelderfer. Graduate of common school and high school and attended Ohio university at Athens two years. School teacher 16 years, bank cashier, seven years and bank examiner, 10 years. At present is liquidating agent for the Ohio banking department. Born and raised on a farm and was actively interested in farming until a few years ago. Married, father of five children. Mr. Reichelderfer says: "I believe my general experience in different business and financial affairs qualifies me to represent the people of Pickaway-co in the General Assembly."

REPUBLICAN

MARION A. SENSENBRENNER—Age 32, E. Union-st, youngest of the five candidates, native of Circleville, born Sept. 18, 1902, son of Edward and Anna Sensenbrenner. Graduate of Circleville high school and attended the Chicago Art institute. Presently employed as a painter of signs and outdoor advertising. Former jeweler and watchmaker. Married, father of three children. Member Trinity Lutheran church, where he is superintendent of the Sunday school. Says Mr. Sensenbrenner: "If elected, I will give active representation to Pickaway-co."

Army Worms Kill Spuds

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Army worms of the same type that ravaged potatoes and other crops in Whatcom County during the pest year of 1899 have been discovered chewing their way through nearly fifty acres of potatoes in rich Nooksack River Valley farms south of Ferndale. Farmers, fearful of the spreading infestation are out in force today fighting the voracious crawlers.

Fresh Air and Sunshine Factors in Good Health

Anemia and Other Blood Disturbances Often Traceable to a Lack of These

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

MOST OF us know that a growing plant requires sunshine and air. When a portion of the leaf is covered it fails to manufacture chlorophyl, the green coloring matter in the leaf. The remainder of the plant, the part exposed to the sun and air, thrives in a normal way.

Dr. Copeland

Like plants and animals, we cannot prosper physically unless we have a sufficient amount of fresh air and sunshine. Yet there are many who overlook this necessity. Some may suffer serious infections and constitutional disorders which could have been prevented if proper measures had been taken at the right time.

Carbon Dioxide

Air is essential because it contains oxygen. Without oxygen life cannot exist. About one-fifth of the air is oxygen. This is extracted from the air we breathe into our lungs and is passed off as carbon dioxide when we exhale. Carbon dioxide is one of the body's waste products. To have an excessive amount of this gas indicates something detrimental to the health of the body.

In addition to obtaining adequate fresh air, it is equally important that the air be cool and contain a certain amount of moisture. The human body constantly produces heat and, under normal conditions, is kept at a temperature between 98 and 99 degrees Fahrenheit. Excess heat is avoided by breathing cool, fresh air.

Value of Sunshine

During the summer months when the temperature is high we sweat freely. The evaporation of the perspiration cools the body and helps maintain normal temperature. When the air is humid and contains a great deal of moisture, this process is interfered with and we do not excrete through the pores of the skin. If this state of affairs continues we become very uncomfortable and may suffer heat stroke.

This is what happened in the Black Hole of Calcutta in which one hundred and forty-six Englishmen were imprisoned overnight in a small room. The room was without ventilation and only a few survived the night. The victims undoubtedly died from heat stroke, contributed to by the moisture of the air in the room.

Like air, sunshine is essential to good health. Primitive people worshipped the sun and believed it to be the father of all life. It is only within recent years that scientists have demonstrated reasons for the beneficial action of sunlight on the body. Everybody now recognizes its importance in the prevention and cure of disease.

Children and young infants who are deprived of sunlight and fresh air become victims of a disease called rickets. Adults frequently suffer from anemia and other blood disturbances because of lack of fresh air and sunshine. When there is little of these natural agents the body becomes extremely susceptible to colds, coughs and infectious diseases.

Laughing Around the World
With IRVIN S. COBB

His Version of the Case

By IRVIN S. COBB

NO MAN'S opinion is entirely worthless. Even a clock that won't run is right twice a day. Lawyers are paid to give opinions, and this story seems to indicate that some clocks are more reliable than some lawyers, even if the clock won't run.

The district leader called up a lawyer who was a party man and therefore one who could be called upon to use influence in a court where the going was tough. He was told that one Marty O'Brien was in a sad scrape and must be liberated at once to keep peace in the district. To his surprise when he arrived at the court he found that O'Brien had been indicted, convicted and sentenced, in fact he had been in jail for two days of a ninety day sentence.

Off he rushed to the jail and got in touch with O'Brien at once. "What was the offense?" asked the lawyer.

"That's what puzzles me," said O'Brien, "all I did was to call a man a name on the street."

"And that's what you were sentenced for?"

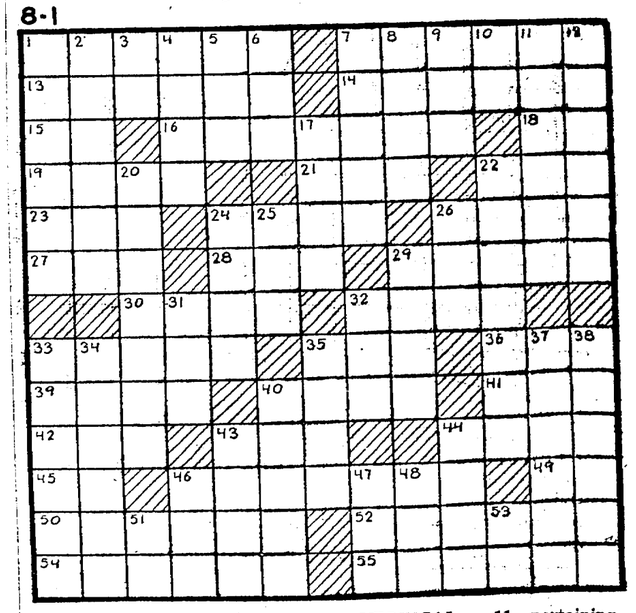

"Sure thing, that's what they got me for."

"Aw hell," said the lawyer, "they can't put you in jail for that."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

It was the kindly philosophy of a friend which launched Irene Dunne, brilliant RKO-Radio Pictures star on the high road to fame.

The friend applied for the position of understudy to Peggy Fears in the light opera, "The Clinging Vine," but was unsuccessful. Instead of weeping over her ill luck and becoming peeved at the world in general, this friend philosophically and graciously recommended Miss Dunne for the same position.

Miss Dunne was accepted, and later, when Miss Fears stepped from the cast, she got her big chance and scored her first big triumph.

Prior to that time Miss Dunne, a typical American girl, had been studying voice at the Chicago Musical College and wondering how she would exist when the modest sum left her by her father was exhausted. Grand opera had always been her goal until the fortuitous chance to become an understudy for a leading woman started her in the more popular field of light opera.

Luck had nothing whatsoever to do with the success she later achieved in dramatic pictures. She...ever and the will to battle... she wanted got role in "Cimarron," ...informed ... seventh talking picture, ...

Controlling Climate

THE greatest tree-planting project ever undertaken in the United States and the greatest in the world with the exception of Russia, soon is to be inaugurated in the Great Plains area. The project is to cost around $75,000,000 and 10 years will be required for its completion.

From the Canadian border to the Texas panhandle, and well into the latter, a belt of trees 100 miles wide will be planted. The belt will consist of 100 strips of trees with a mile of farm land between the strips. Should expectations be realized, the most ideal farming conditions will exist between these windbreaks.

The project is to be in the nature of an experiment for the purpose of correcting present conditions of climate that cause drouths. It will stretch through the heart of that part of the country now being ravaged by drouth. It represents another effort by man to control the forces of nature.

"Man can not change all the forces of weather," said Chief Forester F. A. Silcox, in discussing the program, "but he can modify his own surroundings. He can ameliorate the effects of weather on a large scale, just as he can around his own home."

Breaking of the surface velocity of the wind over a large area, he explained, would mean soil would be held in place, the moisture retained and living conditions for man and beast greatly improved.

Planting of trees as windbreaks has been done on a small scale with favorable results.

Germany "Shocked"

GERMANY is reported to be "shocked" by the American note demanding that Americans be not discriminated against in the payment of interest on Dawes and Young loan bonds, and other obligations.

Instead of the frank treatment of the matter by the state department, Berlin had expected Washington to take a more flexible attitude and one that would permit of negotiations being undertaken. It even was hoped, according to dispatches from Berlin, that Washington would extend an invitation for a commission to be sent to the United States to discuss the matter, and that this discussion might involve an "adjustment" of the German-American trade balance in conformity with the German idea of making German exports to the United States balance German imports from the United States.

But the United States took a more blunt course. It wants its citizens to be treated the same as those of other nations holding German obligations. And it told Berlin so in plain but diplomatic language. If this was a shock, Germany will have to stand it the best it can.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XXXIX

The Japanese was politely blank. 'Yes, sir," he assented, yet with a hint of obtuse obstinacy continued to hold the door open. "What name, plis? I go see."

"Say Mr. Bellamy is calling," Lanyard said.

If his choice of that nom-de-guerre had been unpremeditated, purely a matter of the moment's whim, it was at once evident that he had hit on a name of power.

"Oah, yes!" Intelligence waked instantaneously in the black eyes; and the Jap, as if his every misgiving had been set at rest, released the door, which closed of its own accord. "'Scuse, plis."

"Wait," Lanyard enjoined in the indolent tone of one who expects his lightest wish to be humored. "Here—take these, will you."

Without more ado he dumped hat, coat and gloves upon the servant's hands; and again effrontery prevailed for him. In sudden sleek docility the Jap turned to stow his armful away in a closet—a work of seconds only, yet many enough to cover a stretch of quick thinking.

It seemed evident beyond question that Lanyard's extempore stab at an alias for the hour had been a happy one. The Jap's prompt and supple reaction to the name Bellamy proved nothing if not the existence of a liaison between the hotel of the racketeers and this proud Park Avenue apartment; and if it proved that much, it proved more, that he would but waste time with the Boyce if he were to attempt now to accomplish anything either by diplomatic methods or by appealing to her sportsmanship; and still more, that the Jap was on terms of sympathetic acquaintance with the mob relations of his employer, therefore a potential menace as long as at large in the place while Lanyard was occupied with its mistress.

"And why not?" Lanyard mused, eying the Jap's back as he stood a-tiptoe to engage the loop inside the collar of the top-coat with a hook. "If the son makes free to copy his father's methods, why should not the father profit by the technique of his son?"

Deliberately, then, he planted a hand between the shoulders of the servant, toppled him in, to thresh among the hanging garments, and shut the door and turned the key in its lock.

Less deliberately he left the foyer, prepared for anything, prepared for, at best, a stiff scene with the Boyce. . . . But in the drawing-room there was no one.

He held briefly an alert halt, taking in the ample evidences that it had been till quite lately tenanted.

A handsome room, if a thought florid in its general scheme, it was lighted exclusively by table-lamps. An easy-chair closely shouldered one of these, in its arm a wisp of lace handkerchief lightly crumpled, on the floor beside it an evening newspaper a-sprawl; from an ash-tray on the table a thin fume of cigarette-smoke lifted, swaying in a light draft like the wraith of a wan small snake. In a corner back of the chair a miniature radio-set stood crooning to itself softly.

If their erstwhile audience was invisible, the assumption was reasonable that she had, as women will, hearing a new voice at the door fled to primp and repair her complexion. But Lanyard could neither hear any sound nor detect any symptom of life in the adjoining room of old-rose walls that an open door revealed; and when impudent reconnaissance from its threshold demonstrated that this, the bedchamber, was also empty, he went boldly in and through, via the foyer, to the dining-room, pantry, kitchen and servant's room, then returned the way he had come, stopping only to look into the bathroom, and search every closet, without finding a sign of the Boyce.

Back in the bedchamber once more, he pulled up at a loss.

Nothing was more certain than that he was alone in the apartment with the embittered Jap, who was still venting his indignation by fits and starts on the panels of his prison-door.

If one guess was as good as another, surely the likeliest was that the Boyce had taken fright, when she heard a strange man's voice at the door, and had made her escape.

Proof there was a-plenty beneath his very hand that she had left in haste: there on the glass top of her sybaritic silk-clad dressing-table a coruscant raffle lay, all the priceless treasure of her everyday jewelry, loot that would have paid the old Lone Wolf for any amount of planning and painstaking felony abandoned, apparently, without an instant's hesitation; for with the lot was something that, one would think, the lady would hardly have forgotten if she had had her wits about her and thought herself in any peril—a sweet trinket in gold-plate and mother-of-pearl, as vicious as dainty, an automatic pistol small enough to nestle unsuspected in the bottom of a lady's hand-bag, and deadly enough to drop a charging bull in his tracks.

Deliberately, then, he planted a hand between the shoulders of the servant, toppled him into the closet and turned the key in its lock.

Gingerly Lanyard examined the weapon. It carried a full clip, and had one cartridge already chambered. No telling how soon it might prove useful. Never before, it was true, had he gone under arms on his unlawful occasions. But tonight he was pitting himself against a new school of desperadoes, savage and treacherous as wild beasts. Even their women—as this bijou testified—were the sort to stop at nothing.

On second thought, however, Lanyard contented himself with extracting its fangs and leaving the pistol where he had found it. It went too much against the grain to break a life-long rule of conduct, in this instance especially, when he looked to find himself in actual conflict, if in any, only with a woman.

But where had she fled in such panic? And why? Had she mistaken the voice at the door for that, perhaps, of some enemy in this strange American mob-world, some one at whose hands she had worse than arrest to apprehend?

The question went on gnawing, as irksome as a growling tooth: Where had she gone—to call for help? But she could so readily have done that by telephone!

To some other apartment, then? Some friend's, in the building? If so, whose?

There were, on the stand by the bed, two French-type telephones. One had on its base a dial device for calling outside numbers. The other was without a dial and carried a card with the legend "Ex. 31-B." To this last Lanyard applied himself. A feminine voice brightly responded and asked:

"Order, please?"

"Tell me something. Mr. Frederick Isquith has an apartment in this building, hasn't he?"

"He certainly has—all the thirty-second floor, right over your head. Wait a minute! I'll connect you."

"Never mind. I only wanted to be sure—thank you."

Lanyard hung up. One question, at all events, had been answered.

But if the Boyce had gone to call on Isquith for assistance, what chance had Lanyard of escaping from this trap into which he had walked uninvited? A trap, moreover, from which he had no mind to try to escape unless and until he found out what he had braved it to find.

He tried the other telephone, dialing the number of Crane's hideaway, but got no response other than a broken, muted trilling, the signal for a call that is not completed.

Then he visited the outer doors of the apartment again and thoughtfully set their chain-bolts: he wasn't of any mind to be taken by surprise if, as he suspected, this delay meant that Isquith and the Boyce were waiting for reinforcements from the mob-world to arrive.

The outraged Jap was still giving muffled yelps from time to time and pummeling the door of the foyer-closet; but Lanyard, pitiless, merely stopped at the radio set in the drawing-room and adjusted the volume control till the music was loud enough to override the racket. It was while he was thus engaged that he grew sensible again of the draft through the room, saw how the curtains were bellying in at long glass doors that opened on the terrace, and for the first time bethought him that the woman might possibly have taken to that refuge.

If so, she had, in all probability, been watching his every movement.

Fresh Air and Sunshine Factors in Good Health

Anemia and Other Blood Disturbances Often Traceable to a Lack of These

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

MOST OF us know that a growing plant requires sunshine and air. When a portion of the leaf is covered it fails to manufacture chlorophyl, the green coloring matter in the leaf. The remainder of the plant, the part exposed to the sun and air, thrives in a normal way.

Dr. Copeland

Like plants and animals, we cannot prosper physically unless we have a sufficient amount of fresh air and sunshine. Yet there are many who overlook this necessity. Some may suffer serious infections and constitutional disorders which could have been prevented if proper measures had been taken at the right time.

Carbon Dioxide

Air is essential because it contains oxygen. Without oxygen life cannot exist. About one-fifth of the air is oxygen. This is extracted from the air we breathe into our lungs and is passed off as carbon dioxide when we exhale. Carbon dioxide is one of the body's waste products. To have an excessive amount of this gas indicates something detrimental to the health of the body.

In addition to obtaining adequate fresh air, it is equally important that the air be cool and contain a certain amount of moisture. The human body constantly produces heat and, under normal conditions, is kept at a temperature between 98 and 99 degrees Fahrenheit. Excess heat is avoided by breathing cool, fresh air.

Value of Sunshine

During the summer months when the temperature is high we sweat freely. The evaporation of the perspiration cools the body and helps maintain normal temperature. When the air is humid and contains a great deal of moisture, this process is interfered with and we do not excrete through the pores of the skin. If this state of affairs continues we become very uncomfortable and may suffer heat stroke.

This is what happened in the Black Hole of Calcutta in which one hundred and forty-six Englishmen were imprisoned overnight in a small room. The room was without ventilation and only a few survived the night. The victims undoubtedly died from heat stroke, contributed to by the moisture of the air in the room.

Like air, sunshine is essential to good health. Primitive people worshipped the sun and believed it to be the father of all life. It is only within recent years that scientists have demonstrated reasons for the beneficial action of sunlight on the body. Everybody now recognizes its importance in the prevention and cure of disease.

Children and young infants who are deprived of sunlight and fresh air become victims of a disease called rickets. Adults frequently suffer from anemia and other blood disturbances because of lack of fresh air and sunshine. When there is little of these natural agents the body becomes extremely susceptible to colds, coughs and infectious diseases.

KNOW YOUR CANDIDATES

FOUR Democrats and one Republican seek the job of representing Pickaway-co in the Ohio General Assembly for the next two years. Nathan C. Bohnert, Monroe-twp, who has served four years, declined to run for a third term because of ill health.

It will be necessary to select a well qualified candidate to represent the county in the legislature for the next two years as many perplexing problems, including the school and taxation questions, will have to be solved.

Here are thumb-nail sketches of candidates in the field:

DEMOCRATIC

H. M. CRITES—Aged 64, born in Amanda-twp, Fairfield-co, October 16, 1869, son of Levi S. and Mary Crites. Came here at a comparatively early age and started in the farming business. Later associated with his father in the canning factory now owned by the Sears and Nichols Co., S. Washington-st. Built a number of elevators which he operated until several years ago, disposing them to the Ralston-Purina Co. Still operates several, however, including one on Harrison-st. Mr. Crites served in the city council here 14 year and was also a member of the Ohio constitutional convention in 1912. Well known member of the Ohio grange. Married and has two grown sons.

A. H. CROWNOVER—Native of Monroe-twp, where he has lived practically his entire life as a farmer. Attended Ohio Northern and Ohio Wesleyan universities. At one time considered becoming a lawyer. Returned to Monroe-twp after attending college and married. "I've been there ever since," he says.

CLARK K. HUNSICKER— Age 54, 146 W. Union-st, native of Deercreek-twp, son of Dr. J. W. and Maria W. Hunsicker. Attended school in Circleville and Pennington, N. J., graduating from latter high school. Operated general store from 1892 to 1908. Has served as member of Pickaway-co central committee for 18 years and is chairman at present time. Served two terms as member of the county board of education from 1920-1928. A grain dealer at Williamsport the past 23 years, he has also managed a number of county farms. Served two terms as treasurer of Deercreek-twp from 1902-06, and is now a director of the Farmers' National bank at Williamsport. Married, and has two children.

N. EUGENE REICHELDERFER—Age 52, N. Court-st, native of Tarlton, born January 21, 1882, a son of Rufus and Susan Reichelderfer. Graduate of common school and high school and attended Ohio university at Athens two years. School teacher 16 years, bank cashier, seven years and bank examiner, 10 years. At present is liquidating agent for the Ohio banking department. Born and raised on a farm and was actively interested in farming until a few years ago. Married, father of five children. Mr. Reichelderfer says: "I believe my general experience in different business and financial affairs qualifies me to represent the people of Pickaway-co in the General Assembly."

REPUBLICAN

MARION A. SENSENBRENNER—Age 32, E. Union-st, youngest of the five candidates, native of Circleville, born Sept. 18, 1902, son of Edward and Anna Sensenbrenner. Graduate of Circleville high school and attended the Chicago Art institute. Presently employed as a painter of signs and outdoor advertising. Former jeweler and watchmaker . Married, father of three children. Member Trinity Lutheran church, where he is superintendent of the Sunday school. Says Mr. Sensenbrenner: "If elected, I will give active representation to Pickaway-co."

Army Worms Kill Spuds

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Army worms of the same type that ravaged potatoes and other crops in Whatcom County during the pest year of 1899 have been discovered chewing their way through nearly fifty acres of potatoes in rick Nooksack River Valley farms south of Ferndale. Farmers, fearful of the spreading infestation are out in force today fighting the voracious crawlers.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

His Version of the Case

By IRVIN S. COBB

NO MAN'S opinion is entirely worthless. Even a clock that won't run is right twice a day. Lawyers are paid to give opinions, and this story seems to indicate that some clocks are more reliable than some lawyers, even if the clock won't run.

The district leader called up a lawyer who was a party man and therefore one who could be called upon to use influence in a court where the going was tough. He was told that one Marty O'Brien was in a sad scrape and must be liberated at once to keep peace in the district. To his surprise when he arrived at the court he found that O'Brien had been indicted, convicted and sentenced, in fact he had been in jail for two days of a ninety day sentence.

Off he rushed to the jail and got in touch with O'Brien at once.

"What was the offense?" asked the lawyer.

"That's what puzzles me," said O'Brien, "all I did was to call a man a name on the street."

"And that's what you were sentenced for?"

"Sure thing, that's what they got me for."

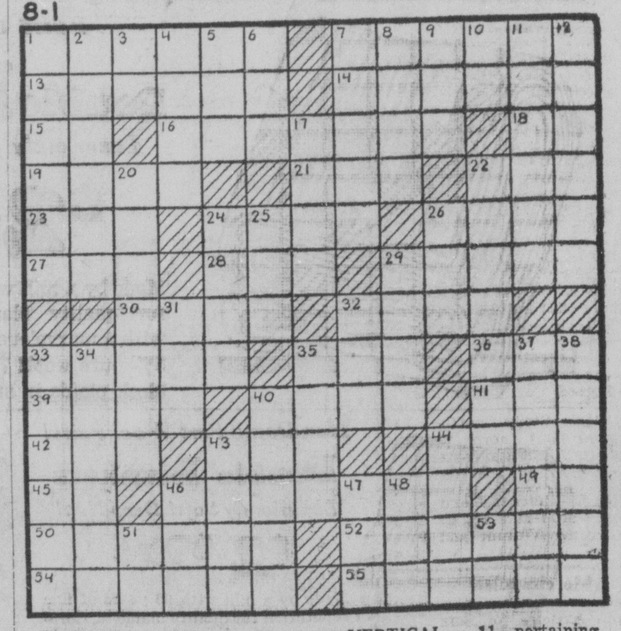

"Aw hell," said the lawyer, "they can't put you in jail for that."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

It was the kindly philosophy of a friend which launched Irene Dunne, brilliant RKO-Radio Pictures star on the high road to fame.

The friend applied for the position of understudy to Peggy Fears in the light opera, "The Clinging Vine," but was unsuccessful. Instead of weeping over her ill luck and becoming peeved at the world in general, this friend philosophically and graciously recommended Miss Dunne for the same position.

Miss Dunne was accepted, and later, when Miss Fears stepped from the cast, she got her big chance and scored her first big triumph.

Prior to that time Miss Dunne, a typical American girl, had been studying voice at the Chicago Musical College and wondering how she would exist when the modest sum left her by her father was exhausted. Grand opera had always been her goal until the fortuitous chance to become an understudy for a leading woman started her in the more popular field of light opera.

Machine Gun Economy

One day an obscure "Tar-Heeler" walked into the office of Major Glenn Wilhelm in Washington, laid a gun on the desk.

"Here is an improvement for your Army machine guns," he said.

All the fanatical, crack-brained inventors are passed along to patient Major Wilhelm, technical adviser to the Chief of Ordnance. He listens attentively, explains politely, sends them home.

But he did not send "Tar-Heeler" Dave Williams back to Godwin, N. C. Though young, obscure, and scientifically uneducated, Williams had an idea. And Wilhelm saw it.

Instead he sent him to the Colt Arms factory in Hartford, Conn., commissioned him to show Colt engineers how to remodel U. S. Army machine guns. Today great numbers of those guns are being made ready for use on Army training grounds.

Williams' idea was to modify a Browning .30 caliber machine gun so that it could be operated by a .22 caliber cartridge. The point is to save money in training gunners.

When a gunner, practicing on the range, fires 1000 rounds of .30 caliber cartridges, his rat-tat-tat costs the government thirty dollars. The same number of .22 caliber cartridges cost three dollars. Williams' inventiveness plus Wilhelm patience now means tenfold saving.

MORE VERY EXCELLENT REASONS WHY HON. MARTIN L. DAVEY SHOULD NOT BE NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF OHIO

Editor,
The Herald,
Circleville, O.
Dear Sir:

I read with much amazement the contribution of L. T. S. in Saturday's edition of The Herald, outlining the reasons why Hon. Martin L. Davey should be nominated as the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio at the August primaries.

My amazement arose from the fact that only two weeks ago at Akron, O., Mr. Davey made a wholesale assault on the press of Ohio, charging that "it had sold out to the Charles Sawyer interests for advertising contracts with companies in which he is affiliated." Now, Mr. Davey's friends have the boldness to use the very press that their chief condemned, to make appeals for votes for his candidacy. To me, this procedure shows the press of Ohio displaying a superbrand of sportsmanship. Of course, the absurdity of Mr. Davey's charges is apparent to the most casual observer, and represents but a fitting demonstration of the tactics that Mr. Davey employes in seeking the gubernatorial nomination.

Among the reasons why Mr. Davey should be nominated, according to L. T. S., is his demonstration of getting votes, evidenced by the fact that he obtained 136,000 signatures on his nominating petitions, filed with the Secretary of State last June 13. I might say, after painstaking inquiry that Mr. Davey sent out 56,000 nominating petitions all over the state previous to the filing date, while his two most prominent opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor, together, did not send out over 700. These petitions of Mr. Davey came into every county like the speeches of congressmen sent out under the franking privilege.

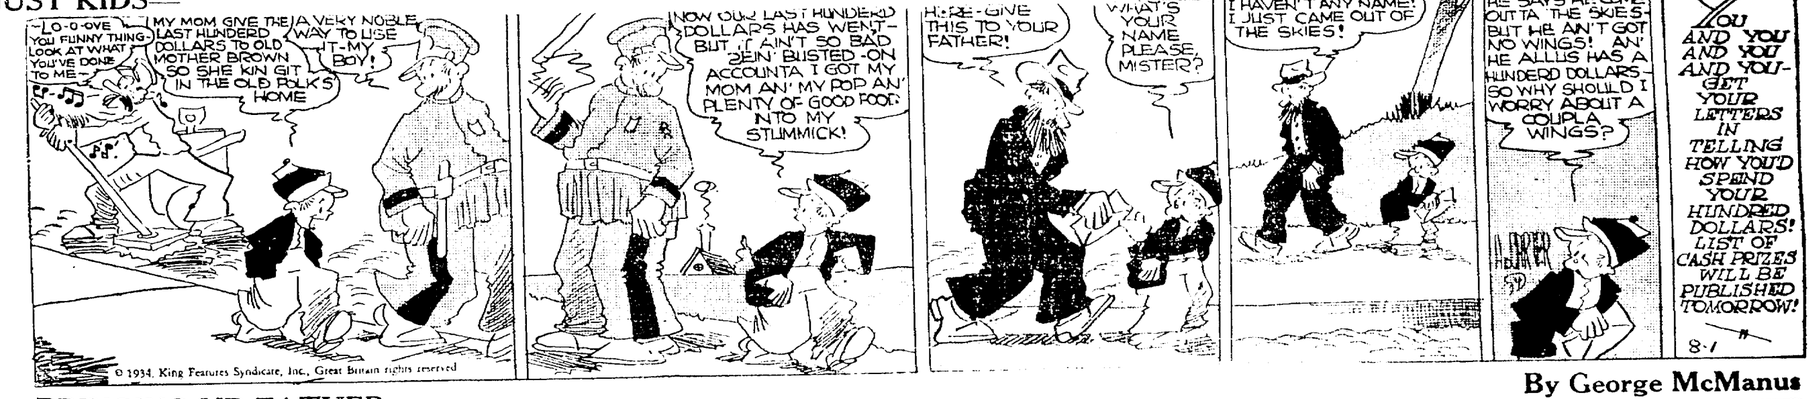

With only three names on each of these petitions, Mr. Davey could have secured 150,000 names. So, this certainly is not tested strength. L. T. S. also points to Mr. Davey's fine record while serving as congressman from Ohio. I do not remember reading of any notable achievements Mr. Davey accomplished in all of his 12 years in Congress.

Mr. Davey's platform of promises is appealing. Yet, the intelligent voter knows that it would be an impossibility to fulfill all of them. Mr. Davey condemns Mr. Sawyer for not having a platform. Mr. Sawyer's reply to this is: "As governor of Ohio, I shall have no obligations or commitments except my promise to govern without fear or favor, and uncontrolled by any individual, group, class, interest or locality. I shall be the governor of all the people of the state, and meet all situations as they arise, unbound by any promises to hamper their just solution."

Yours very truly,
MORRIS I. BOGGS,
Chairman - Ex - service Men's Sawyer for Governor Club of Pickaway County, O.

Among the reasons why Mr. Davey should be nominated, according to L. T. S., is his demonstration of getting votes, evidenced by the fact that he obtained 130,000 signatures on his nominating petitions, filed with the Secretary of State last June 13. I might say, after painstaking inquiry that Mr. Davey sent out 50,000 nominating petitions all over the state previous to the filing date, while his two most prominent opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor, together, did not send out over 700. These petitions of Mr. Davey came into every county like the speeches of congressmen sent out under the franking privilege.

With only three names on each of these petitions, Mr. Davey could have secured 150,000 names. So, this certainly is not tested strength. L. T. S. also points to Mr. Davey's fine record while serving as congressman from Ohio. I do not remember reading of any notable achievements Mr. Davey accomplished in all of his 12 years in Congress.

Mr. Davey's platform of promises is appealing. Yet, the intelligent voter knows that it would be an impossibility to fulfill all of them. Mr. Davey condemns Mr. Sawyer for not having a platform. Mr. Sawyer's reply to this is: "As governor of Ohio, I shall have no obligations or commitments except my promise to govern without fear or favor, and uncontrolled by any individual, group, class, interest or locality. I shall be the governor of all the people of the state, and meet all situations as they arise, unbound by any promises to hamper their just solution."

Yours very truly,
MORRIS I. BOGGS,
Chairman - Ex - service Men's Sawyer for Governor Club of Pickaway County, O.

Child Movies Urged in Drive

Children's movies for and by children may be a new trend in Hollywood studios as a result of the vigorous protests of churches, civic and educational organizations against film indecency. For years youthful moviegoers, who compose a large percentage of the 72,000,000 ticket buyers each week, have been forced to view passion, racketeer and sophisticated dramas in which they had no particular interest. Producers, seeing the "handwriting on the wall" in the adult protest, plan to give more attention to child actors, and to turn out western and adventure films for matinee consumption. Recalling the fame attained by Jackie Coogan, Davy Lee and Mitzi Green in past years, studios have launched energetic campaigns in behalf of the newer child stars, including Shirley Temple, Jackie Cooper and Baby Leroy.

seemed certain.

Both men have been held in contempt of the court since July 23 when they first refused to tell where they learned that Representative J. Sterling Towles was to be hung in effigy. They already have spent 33 hours each in jail and paid fines and costs.

Encouraging letters have been sent the men from all parts of the country from fellow newspapermen who would follow the same course if they were to be asked to violate a confidence. The president of the Kentucky Press association has added his support to Durham and Carty.

A third youth, Victor Bodner, Danville medical student, who refused Monday to answer questions about the effigy is also slated to appear today. He, too, may be fined unless he tells what he knows.

Where the "horseplay" will end is not certain.

TIME YET TO JOIN

The plan of the enterprise is such that "everybody wins" inasmuch as a cash commission will be paid all who do not win one of the prizes listed.

The rules and regulations governing the winning of the prizes are such that everyone is absolutely guaranteed fairness. They are so devised as to leave no chance of any member taking an unfair advantage of another one. The one that accomplishes the best work will get the best prize.

No matter how many enter the "Salesmanship Club" all will be paid for their efforts provided of course they abide by the printed rules. This itself makes the enterprise a "sure thing" for those who would like to cash in on their spare time in a big way.

Spare time is all that is required to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations incurred in entering the campaign.

However, those who are thinking of joining the campaign must get their names in within the next few days, in order to compete without a handicap.

NATIONAL OFFICE

since the opening of the Pickaway-co office last December, 2,253 persons have registered. Of this number 1,335 have been given employment.

Of the latter, the greater majority have been placed on projects financed wholly or partially by the federal government.

"A good percentage of this number, however," Shea said, "has been placed with private employers in Pickaway-co and other smaller groups of skilled workers have been transferred to permanent jobs in other Ohio cities."

NOT RELIEF AGENCY

Mr. Shea pointed out that contrary to popular opinion the Reemployment Service is in no wise a relief agency. Instead it has been set up by the Public Works administration to minimize the migration of labor from one city to another and from one state to another, placing the unemployed in an orderly fashion.

Similar employment offices function in approximately 3,000 other counties in the United States. That the Reemployment Office is not merely a labor depot, was also brought out by Mr. Shea.

Its files include many persons of the most skilled and professional groups. Technically trained college graduates have registered in the Reemployment service throughout Ohio and many of them have been assigned to splendid, well-paying jobs.

To assist in this campaign to place persons in private industries, Mr. Shea is requesting house-wives, store keepers, shop foremen and larger employers to call at his office in the city hall building, phone 174, when workers are needed.

There is no charge for this service either for the unemployed person or for the employer.

Juanita Barnes, of Walnut Valley, is spending a month with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Kempton. Mrs. Kempton is recovering nicely from her broken arm, which she sustained a month ago.

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Gardner motored to Indianola Camp, on Sunday, and Miss Mary Gardner, who had spent two weeks in camp accompanied them home.

Mrs. Joe Anderson and sons, Harold and Junior, of near Circleville, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roby on Saturday evening.

Frank Redick, of Columbus, visited his brother, Charles Redick and family on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hildebrand, near Meade, had for their guests on Thursday their six daughters.

Simon Bookwalter, of Columbus, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bookwalter and family.

Mrs. D. H. Dreisbach, who has been confined to her bed for two weeks, is slowly recovering.

AUSTRIA TO BAR VON PAPEN; TRIAL OF NAZIS IS RESUMED

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—A government spokesman today informed International News Service that the mission of Baron Franz Von Papen to Austria as a special envoy of Chancellor Adolf Hitler will not be acceptable to the Austrian government.

The government spokesman said that prompt action by the big powers is expected by the Austrian government.

"The Austrian government is not conducting direct negotiations with Germany at present," he said, "but it expects that the situation will be cleared up by action of the big powers."

The government spokesman was asked whether or not there had been negotiations between Chancellor Schuschnigg and Von Papen who are old school friends.

"Schuschnigg and Von Papen are well acquainted," he said, "but old relations ceased with Von Papen and other members of the German government in the last few months."

FAVORABLE AS ENVOY

Asked whether the government would agree to the appointment of Von Papen as minister from Germany, he said "we are ready to agree to Von Papen or any other acceptable envoy if he will be merely the diplomatic representative of his country. But we are not ready to agree to anybody who comes as the special representative of Hitler or the Nazi party of Germany.

"If it were intended to send Von Papen as a successor to Rieth (Kurt Rieth, German minister to Vienna whom Hitler recalled for involving Germany in the Chancellery raid) it would not have been announced that he would be responsible to Hitler only.

"If he were officially appointed as minister then agreement would be given to him at once."

Paul Hudl, a former lieutenant in the army, will be the next of the 142 Nazis, most of them boys, who were captured in the Chancellery after the death of Chancellor Dollfuss, to go on trial.

He faces the fate of Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber, the first of their number to go on trial, who died by the slow strangulation of the Austrian method of hanging.

FRIEND OF EMIL FEY

Hudl is a personal friend of Major Emil Fey, special commissar of security, who was captured in the chancellory by the Nazis with Dollfuss. His father is a personal aide to the Archduke Eugene of Hapsburg who recently returned to Austria and reportedly intervened to have Hudl's trial postponed until after that of Planetta and Holzweber.

His trial was due to start at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

And Vienna having at last witnessed the hanging of Nazis waited for the dire things threatened to happen. These included the shooting of 500 priests and the bombing of the Cathedral of St. Stephan, one of the finest cathedrals of Europe.

None of these things had happened yet today but the government was not taking them as idle threats. The cathedral especially was guarded inside and out and every devotee arriving for the morning masses was carefully scrutinized.

There was a bomb explosion near Vienna and three houses were reported dynamited in Salzburg after the hangings.

Although they are all obviously guilty of treason, the charge on which their leader Holzweber was convicted and hanged, it is doubtful that many of the 142 young Nazis, whose average age is 20, will suffer the extreme penalty.

TO SPARE MINORS

For one thing Austrians are very reluctant to execute minors. It was recalled that Gavril Princip whose rash act at Sarajevo threw all Europe and later most of the world into conflict was not executed because he was under 21.

For another thing Austria in her present crisis is determined not to earn the reputation for brutality that the Nazi government of Germany acquired after the widespread killings of June 30.

It was learned today that the first thing Chancellor Schuschnigg intends to do after things quiet down is to go to Rome to confer with Mussolini.

Children's movies for and by children may be a new trend in Hollywood studios as a result of the vigorous protests of churches, civic and educational organizations against film indecency. For years youthful moviegoers, who compose a large percentage of the 72,000,000 ticket buyers each week, have been forced to view passion, racketeer and sophisticated dramas in which they had no particular interest. Producers, seeing the "handwriting on the wall" in the adult protest, plan to give more attention to child actors, and to turn out western and adventure films for matinee consumption. Recalling the fame attained by Jackie Coogan, Davy Lee and Mitzi Green in past years, studios have launched energetic campaigns in behalf of the newer child stars, including Shirley Temple, Jackie Cooper and Baby Leroy.

seemed certain.

Both men have been held in contempt of the court since July 23 when they first refused to tell where they learned that Representative J. Sterling Towles was to be hung in effigy. They already have spent 33 hours each in jail and paid fines and costs.

Encouraging letters have been sent the men from all parts of the country from fellow newspapermen who would follow the same course if they were to be asked to violate a confidence. The president of the Kentucky Press association has added his support to Durham and Carty.

A third youth, Victor Bodner, Danville medical student, who refused Monday to answer questions about the effigy is also slated to appear today. He, too, may be fined unless he tells what he knows.

Where the "horseplay" will end is not certain.

TIME YET TO JOIN

The plan of the enterprise is such that "everybody wins" inasmuch as a cash commission will be paid all who do not win one of the prizes listed.

The rules and regulations governing the winning of the prizes are such that everyone is absolutely guaranteed fairness. They are so devised as to leave no chance of any member taking an unfair advantage of another one. The one that accomplishes the best work will get the best prize.

No matter how many enter the "Salesmanship Club" all will be paid for their efforts provided of course they abide by the printed rules. This itself makes the enterprise a "sure thing" for those who would like to cash in on their spare time in a big way.

Spare time is all that is required to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations incurred in entering the campaign.

However, those who are thinking of joining the campaign must get their names in within the next few days, in order to compete without a handicap.

NATIONAL OFFICE

since the opening of the Pickaway-co office last December, 2,253 persons have registered. Of this number 1,335 have been given employment.

Of the latter, the greater majority have been placed on projects financed wholly or partially by the federal government.

"A good percentage of this number, however," Shea said, "has been placed with private employers in Pickaway-co and other smaller groups of skilled workers have been transferred to permanent jobs in other Ohio cities."

NOT RELIEF AGENCY

Mr. Shea pointed out that contrary to popular opinion the Reemployment Service is in no wise a relief agency. Instead it has been set up by the Public Works administration to minimize the migration of labor from one city to another and from one state to another, placing the unemployed in an orderly fashion.

Similar employment offices function in approximately 3,000 other counties in the United States. That the Reemployment Office is not merely a labor depot, was also brought out by Mr. Shea.

Its files include many persons of the most skilled and professional groups. Technically trained college graduates have registered in the Reemployment service throughout Ohio and many of them have been assigned to splendid, well-paying jobs.

To assist in this campaign to place persons in private industries, Mr. Shea is requesting house-wives, store keepers, shop foremen and larger employers to call at his office in the city hall building, phone 174, when workers are needed.

There is no charge for this service either for the unemployed person or for the employer.

AUSTRIA TO BAR VON PAPEN; TRIAL OF NAZIS IS RESUMED

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—A government spokesman today informed International News Service that the mission of Baron Franz Von Papen to Austria as a special envoy of Chancellor Adolf Hitler will not be acceptable to the Austrian government.

The government spokesman said that prompt action by the big powers is expected by the Austrian government.

"The Austrian government is not conducting direct negotiations with Germany at present," he said, "but it expects that the situation will be cleared up by action of the big powers."

The government spokesman was asked whether or not there had been negotiations between Chancellor Schuschnigg and Von Papen who are old school friends.

"Schuschnigg and Von Papen are well acquainted," he said, "but old relations ceased with Von Papen and other members of the Germar government in the last few months."

FAVORABLE AS ENVOY

Asked whether the government would agree to the appointment of Von Papen as minister from Germany, he said "we are ready to agree to Von Papen or any other acceptable envoy if he will be merely the diplomatic representative of his country. But we are not ready to agree to anybody who comes as the special representative of Hitler or the Nazi party of Germany.

"If it were intended to send Von Papen as a successor to Rieth (Kurt Rieth, German minister to Vienna whom Hitler recalled for involving Germany in the Chancellory raid) it would not have been announced that he would be responsible to Hitler only.

"If he were officially appointed as minister then agreement would be given to him at once."

Paul Hudl, a former lieutenant in the army, will be the next of the 142 Nazis, most of them boys, who were captured in the Chancellory after the death of Chancellor Dollfuss, to go on trial.

He faces the fate of Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber, the first of their number to go on trial, who died by the slow strangulation of the Austrian method of hanging.

FRIEND OF EMIL FEY

Hudl is a personal friend of Major Emil Fey, special commissar of security, who was captured in the chancellory by the Nazis with Dollfuss. His father is a personal aide to the Archduke Eugene of Hapsburg who recently returned to Austria and reportedly intervened to have Hudl's trial postponed until after that of Planetta and Holzweber.

His trial was due to start at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

And Vienna having at last witnessed the hanging of Nazis waited for the dire things threatened to happen. These included the shooting of 500 priests and the bombing of the Cathedral of St. Stephan, one of the finest cathedrals of Europe.

None of these things had happened yet today but the government was not taking them as idle threats. The cathedral especially was guarded inside and out and every devotee arriving for the morning masses was carefully scrutinized.

There was a bomb explosion near Vienna and three houses were reported dynamited in Salzburg after the hangings.

Although they are all obviously guilty of treason, the charge on which their leader Holzweber was convicted and hanged, it is doubtful that many of the 142 young Nazis, whose average age is 20, will suffer the extreme penalty.

TO SPARE MINORS

For one thing Austrians are very reluctant to execute minors. It was recalled that Gavril Princip whose rash act at Sarajevo threw all Europe and later most of the world into conflict was not executed because he was under 21.

For another thing Austria in her present crisis is determined not to earn the reputation for brutality that the Nazi government of Germany acquired after the widespread killings of June 30.

It was learned today that the first thing Chancellor Schuschnigg intends to do after things quiet down is to go to Rome to confer with Mussolini.
